

Contemporary Approaches to University Teaching

Contemporary Approaches to University Teaching is a massive open online course (MOOC)

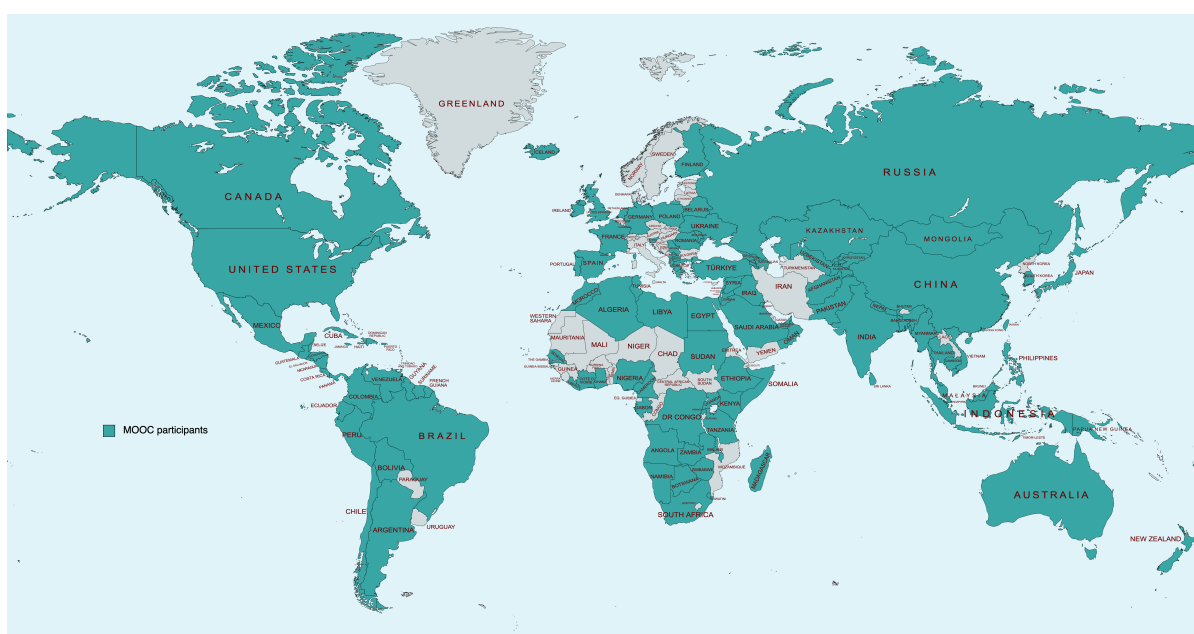

Available free of charge and open to all

Self-paced asynchronous study

Choose from twenty-four modules and three resources

Content available to share and adapt under a Creative Commons license

<https://canvas.instructure.com/enroll/DGJ4KE>

This is your course if you:

- teach in higher education anywhere in the world
- are a sessional, contract or continuing teacher
- want content designed by learning and teaching experts
- want to reflect on your teaching and enhance your students' learning
- want to evidence your professional learning
- are interested in scoping the content for your institution's professional development

Collaboration and development

- Developed by 40+ content experts including teachers, researchers, university leaders, academic developers and learning advisors

Delivery and participation

- 65+ educational institutions have received MOOC content
- 9000+ participants from 107+ countries since 2018
- translated into 4+ languages

Awards

- 2024 CAULLT/HERDSA Award for Outstanding Leadership in Research and Development in Higher Education
- 2018 Finalist with Distinction of the Australasian Academic Development Good Practice Awards

Academic leads:

Professor Agnes Bosanquet (Torrens University) and Associate Professor Marina Harvey (Macquarie University)

Dates: February 16 to June 28, 2026

Format: Online, self-paced

Time: 2 hours per module

Cost: FREE

Contact: mooc@caullt.edu.au